REPORT OF SCHOOL BOARD.

The school board in submitting their annual report are pleased in being able to say that that they are confident the past year, as a whole, has been the most successful one experienced in our schools since the introduction of the town system. The people at large, we believe, have come to see its advantages over the district method and to realize that it offers equal opportunities to all the school children. When fully carried out, it becomes a potent agent in levelling up society, abrading all sectional differences, and so harmonizing the masses as to work for the good of the whole. Really we cannot afford to have any north or south, east or west in educational affairs. Those living farthest from school should not have the consciousness forced upon them that they have not equal advantages with those living in the village, or near the school house. No town can afford to allow such a state of things to exist, for it is creating castes, breeding aristocracy, and thereby undermining the principles of our government.

The graded system is now introduced into our schools with one exception. All the grammar pupils in town, save from school No. 4, are in the grammar schools of the village, so that in No. 1 and No. 3 schools there are really only intermediate and primary grades; thus giving the teachers of these schools time to do far more for the little children than it were possible when they had from twenty to twenty-five different classes to hear each day, and at the same time our grammar schools are not impeded in the least by this addition. This is specially an age of classification and systematizing. It would be a great mistake for our schools to make an exception.

We are experiencing encouraging results by furnishing free text books to the children. This is proving a decided help in classifying and getting the pupils to work at once as the terms open. For the most part we find that the children are disposed to use the books carefully, keeping them neat and in a good condition.

The furnishing of books places additional responsibility upon teachers and committees. It requires no little time and labor to supply and look after a thousand books so that there shall be no waste. Generally where damage has been done to books or school property by the pupils, they have been ready to make all damages good. Honest students are to be prized, and are deserving to be spoken of in terms of praise.

The order in our schools has been excellent except for one term in a single school. Scarcely an instance of corporal punishment has occurred and still the order has been far better than it used to be, when rod and ruler were wont to be freely applied.

There has been but little whispering ; of course that little has been too much. Children should be sent from the home to school impressed with the feeling that they should live up to the regulations and requirements without any compulsion on the part of the teachers, that they should govern themselves, being anxious and ready to be taught. Whenever and wherever this is the case, teachers are not obliged to spend their energies in correcting and disciplining. They are then enabled to do their best in giving instruction.

There have been but few changes in teachers the past year. This we regard very fortunate. Frequent fluctuations are ruinous to schools. Men in doing successful business guard against changing help oftener than is absolutely necessary, for it tends to produce loss of time and capital. Until teacher and students become somewhat acquainted, they are not prepared to do the best mental work. Such acquaintance can seldom be formed short of a term; and whenever the ingress and egress of teachers follow in quick succession, there is certain to be great waste of mind and money.

The board have allowed mileage to all pupils for the distance travelled beyond a mile and a half from the school; for instance the pupil who has been obliged to go two miles to school has received pay for half a mile each way. The compensation has been some four cents per mile. This is not any too much and the board would be glad to be instructed by the town to increase the rate. A just compensation is demanded, and no doubt, will be heartily granted by all well-wishers of our schools in the years to come. It is hoped that the state will settle, as soon as practicable, what the mileage rate shall be.

Singing has been continued in the schools after the method of last year. It has been largely under the supervision of Miss E. E. Randall. She has been untiring in her efforts to render music a success in our schools. She has presented it in such a manner as to make it attractive and at the same time a discipline. The practice has resulted in improving the voices of the children and enabling them to read music by note. Four years ago there was scarcely a pupil in our schools who could readily read music, but now there are large numbers who are proficient in reading it at sight. This branch, as it is taught, is proving a stimulus to other studies. We are confident that those pupils who have made greatest advancement in music, have made also the greatest progress in other studies. So music is not in our schools to hinder but excite mind in the pursuit of knowledge.

At the opening of the present school year, Prang's system of drawing was introduced to our schools, and so alternates with writing. The special object to be gained is to train the eye to see accurately and the hand to be obedient to the will. This is a branch of practical importance in all the vocations of life. Thus far it has proved more successful than was anticipated.

The board are very grateful to all who have lent their influence to encourage our schools. None too much can be effected, if all do the best they can in educating the young. The hope of the future rests in them. If they shall be built up in character, as God would have them, then can we rejoice and be thankful. But if through neglect of duty on our part they shall be made to suffer, what a retribution awaits. It is easy to find fault, a fool can do that, but a noble end can be gained only by earnest consecrated effort. It is easy to tear down but difficult to construct. We should be sparing of the torch, but dexterous with the hammer. Life is too short to allow of waste. Accordingly we should look after the education of the young without any abatement. By personal observation and experience we should know just what they are doing in their educational work. It is too important for us to rely upon mere hearsays to know of it; it demands eye-witnesses. However reliable children may be, they cannot have developed character sufficient always to know what is really for their highest good. The wise farmer, however dutiful his son of ten or fifteen years old may be, will not depend upon him to feed and guard his stock without frequently being looked after by those of experience. Should he neglect to do this he would be subject to blame and censure. Now, then, should he place less value upon the training of immortal minds? How can he excuse himself from now and then visiting the school wherein his children are being educated? Having failed to do this, has he the moral right to criticise severely the work which is going on in the school? Certainly such a course is unchristian.

The prevailing sickness the past term has decreased very much the average attendance, and the number of names upon the roll of honor. Still we can be reconciled to such a dispensation for it is beyond human agency. It should be borne in mind that the roll of honor signifies constant attendance, no tardiness, and a high rank in moral conduct. It is gratifying that a large majority of our pupils have stood high in their studies and moral conduct.

It has been the aim of those in charge to have the distinguishing characteristics of our schools: first, good order growing out of a noble spirit and a readiness to deny ~~our~~^{ourselves} for the welfare of others; second, to cultivate attention and concentration of mind, holding it persistently to the subject at hand, training the eye to see, the ear to hear and the intellect to grasp the thought and master the principle; third, to gain the power of distribution, realizing that if one has an abundance of information and yet no readiness to impart it, that ~~it~~ is a sad misfortune; so what one learns should be classified that it may be given to others in a natural manner;

fourth, to cultivate retention, or the ability to hold and remember what has been learned ; it is not sufficient for one to look up his acquisitions with difficulty, he should be able to recall readily, put the emphasis where it belongs and give true expression to his ideas ; finally, to make close discrimination between right and wrong, cleaving to the former and shunning the latter.

Let such a course be followed and the issues will be fortunate. From our schools will go forth young men and women, modest, wise, temperate, pure and steadfast to principle. This is laying a solid foundation of character, fitting souls to become ornaments in the home, the church, and state.

SCHOOL NO. 2.

THE HIGH AND FIRST GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The whole number of scholars, 48 ; daily average attendance, 32 ; number of visits by committee, 20 ; and others, 80.

This school has been under the charge of Miss Fredrietta T. Hill. The order and discipline have been excellent. The students have averaged high in their class-work. Fixedness of attention, clearness of thought, and natural expression have been strikingly developed in recitation. The greatest drawback has been the want of time to do what has seemed a necessity. As the students advance, the branches to be taught increase from term to term, and will continue to do so, plainly showing that the time cannot be far off when we will be compelled to have a separate high school. The board have already been forced to supply some assistance by employing older scholars to hear a few classes. In these instances good work has been done.

It is indeed gratifying that the students in this school have been of a high order as to talent and conduct. In many respects it has been a model school and a great blessing to our town. Miss Hill has had charge of this school for more than three years.

THE SECOND GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The whole number of pupils, 29 ; daily average attendance, 25 ; number of visits by committee, 18 ; and others, 100.

The first term of the school year was taught by Miss Julia E. Reed, who was most devoted to her pupils and greatly beloved by them. The last two terms have been under the instruction of Miss Marion L. Farnum, who has taught successfully in town for years. She has striven to have a good school. Most of the students have co-operated with her and so have made excellent progress. Some few have lacked in interest in their studies and been given too much to play. It does not pay to sow tares, for wheat can never be gathered from such scattering and waste of time.

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL.

The whole number of different pupils during the year, 71 ; average daily attendance, 46 ; visits by committee, 17 ; and others, 112.

This school has been under the charge of Miss Etta A. Sawyer for some four years, and has been improving all the while. She has shown herself an honest, earnest, competent and thorough teacher. She esteems highly her children and so commands their good will. It is a difficult school to keep, but it is well managed.

FIRST AND SECOND PRIMARY SCHOOLS.

The pupils of the former have been to school for the last two terms in the forenoon, and the latter in the afternoon. Whole number of pupils for the year, 127; average number belonging to the school, 98; average daily attendance, 73; number of visits by committee, 26, and by parents and others, 75.

The primary department has been under the charge of Miss E. E. Randall for nearly five years. She has made it a most interesting and successful school, as all testify who have witnessed its working. The children all know that she loves them and that she is going to do them all the good possible. Her instruction is largely objective, abounding in happy illustration. Her school room is full of good cheer and is wide awake. She carefully looks after the mind and heart of her little folk. It is fortunate for them to be placed under one of so large experience, so apt to teach, and so desirous to start them just right in morals, manners and thinking.

Does the present method of dividing the pupils so that each division is in school but a half a day work well? Perhaps, as well as it was anticipated. Some dissatisfaction has been expressed to the school board by a few parents. If the best work is being done for the children under the present arrangement, then we should continue as we are doing, but if not, then we should provide for another school without delay.

SCHOOL NO. 1.

The average number of pupils is 28; average daily attendance, 23; number of visits by committee, 22, and others, 73.

This school was under the tuition of Miss Susie A. Brown for the first term, and has been in charge of Miss Mary H. Smith for the last two terms. Miss Smith has brought it up to a high standard, making it orderly, free from whispering, and enthusiastic. She has a happy faculty in causing her pupils to think before they speak. Her gymnastics have proved a blessing to the children. This school has been up with the times, and can no longer be classed as second rate.

SCHOOL NO. 3.

Whole number of different pupils, 44; average number belonging to the school, 29; average daily attendance, 23; visits by the committee, 10, and by others, 51.

In this school there has been more thinking than talk; more substance than display. The first term was taught by Miss Marion L. Farnum, and the rest of the year by Miss Wiggin, who has wrought in a quiet way to reach noble results in her school. Her culture, experience, love of children, and good judgment, prepare her to do successful work in the school room. Whispering has not been tolerated in her school. Order has prevailed with a kindly spirit on the part of teacher and pupils.

This school suffers from a fluctuating population, and so varies greatly in numbers from term to term. It has been more affected by sickness this winter than any other school in town, so that it falls two weeks short of thirty-three weeks, which the other schools have kept. This loss will be made up another term, no doubt.

SCHOOL NO. 4.

Whole number of different pupils during the year, 30; average number belonging to the school, 16; average daily attendance, 15; number of visits by committee, 8, and by others, 45.

Miss Ellen Taft has taught this school now going on two years. A good teacher and good pupils could not do otherwise than have a good school, and such this has been the past year. Teacher and students have worked hard and accomplished much in building up mind and character. Mental arithmetic and the speller have not been slighted. This is the school on the hill, and may it continue to advance in wisdom, letting its light shine more brightly and widely as the years go by.

While we have reason to congratulate ourselves on the prosperity of our schools, still we can but lament that there should have been so many absences and tardinesses, causing thereby so much loss of mental growth and waste of money. It becomes us to look well to these hindrances and remove them so far as possible. We should act on the ground of having every well child in town from six to fourteen years of age, in school, in keeping with the strict letter of the state statute. Truants, and parents who keep their children out of school purposely, should be dealt with to the fullest intent and extent of the law.

If our children shall continue to be under good instruction and discipline, we have reason to believe that they will become enterprising and useful citizens. If our schools are not all we could wish them to be, let us be the more devoted to them, striving to make them complete and truly prosperous. As parents and patriots we should be deeply impressed with their superlative importance to a free people. If we only do the best we can for our schools, they will advance, affording the young higher privileges, better training and riper culture.

FRED E. ADAMS,
Town Clerk.

REPORT OF CEMETERY COMMITTEE.

All the cemeteries in town that are under our charge have been looked after in a general way, and at small expense have been kept in good condition.

We have not succeeded in devising any means whereby water can be successfully introduced into Pine Grove cemetery. There is a growing demand that this be accomplished, but the expense of obtaining a good supply is greater than we feel willing to incur without special instructions from the town.

Below is given the financial account for the year.
